Notes for John Browne:
General Notes:
Larrakia Development Corporation Pty Ltd Newsletter December 2009 Issue 27 The Academic Brownes (p.10).
John Browne is the patriarch of a high-achieving Larrakia family living in Adelaide. Mr Browne started his educational journey using boxing skills learned at the Darwin Police Boys Club to teach manners to schoolyard bullies. Almost five decades later, Mr Browne counts a Masters Degree in Conflict Resolution and Mediation among his other achievements, and is a Senior Academic Adviser with the David Unaipon College of Education and Research at the University of South Australia.
John Browne, born in 1949 to a Larrakia woman, Nancy Moo, who married war veteran Bill Browne, is the second oldest of 14 children, most of whom still live in the Top End, along with 40 nephews and nieces.
John's role at the University of South Australia is responsibility for the welfare and academic guidance of 80 Indigenous students, and admissions of Indigenous
John and his wife, Anna, have four daughters. All have tertiary education, or are working towards it. Vanessa is a highly-qualified psychiatric nurse at Adelaide's Glenside Mental Hospital. Natalie has put her law degree to work as a defence lawyer in the Criminal Courts. Emily combines studies for a Commerce Degree with her job with the Indigenous Land Corporation, and the youngest, Sarah, holds a Certificate 3 in Health, and aims for a career in nursing commencing next year.

The Browne family found it increasingly difficult to cope with the needs of 14 children, and in 1963, young John took advantage of a scheme which saw him completing his secondary schooling in Adelaide at St Paul's and then the prestigious boarding school, Rostrevor College where he became the first Indigenous student to captain the athletic team in 100 years.

John has published research papers on foster care and young offender programs, and a social workers' guide comparing academic motivations for indigenous and non-Aboriginal secondary students. He is thrilled that his presence in the University of South Australia has been the catalyst for eight more indigenous Territorians to enrol next year.

John Browne says that while Larrakia such as himself have moved away from home for career and family reasons, they never forget extended family and friends, and their traditional country in the Top End.
