Dear Bill

Thanks for your last letter and comments on the Kulaluk report - they were very useful. After receiving yours and others critical comments I revised the report and tried to get rid of some of the waffle and repetition. I also took a lot of the theory out of the introduction so hopefully with these changes it reads a little better. I hope you enjoy the final product! I agree with you that it is important that this story 'gets out' and doesn't remain hidden but I don't think that it's good enough to try for publication. I have however deposited many copies of the report around the traps up here so people should be able to find it pretty easily. It would be good to get some feedback from the Heritage Commission about it but I imagine that they receive millions of reports and they get filed away somewhere never to surface again.

Congratulations on submitting your honours thesis. I don't think people generally appreciate the work, energy and emotion that goes into writing a thesis - you're brave to already be contemplating more study, although in some ways working at that level is quite addictive.

Finally, many many thanks for the support that you have given me on this project.

Take care

Sam.
